

Offer Teenagers Positive, Age-Appropriate Discipline

Like many aspects of parenting, discipline can get trickier as children turn into teenagers. Although your kids are outgrowing timeouts or the loss of television privileges, they haven't outgrown the need for loving, healthy boundaries—and consequences when they mess up. Discipline methods may change as kids age, but the goal is the same: shaping them into responsible, respectful Christian adults who internalize God-honoring boundaries and good behavior.

Even when teenagers have more say in their rules, parents still have important roles to play. You clearly communicate and enforce the expectations and limits. You stand your ground when teenagers challenge your authority. You discipline (and follow through) in a calm, consistent way. You're present during good and bad times, assuring teenagers that you love them even when they mess up. Finally, you model good behavior, showing how loving obedience yields rewards.

Parenting expert Jim Burns says the goal of discipline is to teach kids responsibility, not to evoke obedience. "Our job is not to always prevent our children from making mistakes but rather to make certain they learn from their mistakes," he says. This needs to be done in a relaxed, respectful way, and it's the parent's job to establish this tone. "Shame-based parenting, when parents attempt to influence their kids' behavior through shaming, nagging, and negativity, simply doesn't work in the long run," Burns says.

In the Bible, the book of Jonah tells of a prophet who learned a tough lesson about disobeying God. Group's Live Bible offers these insights into God's relentless pursuit of people who try to flee from him:

Trying to run away from God is a fruitless venture. He may let you off the hook for a short while, but in the end his purposes will be realized.

You can choose to live outside God's best for you, or you can participate with him in the big picture he has designed for your life, your circle of friends, your community, and the world. When we try to run away from God, we miss out on the joy of obedience.

The prophet Jonah is a quite complex (and sometimes humorous) character. As we watch, he attempts to do the exact opposite of what God asked him to do: Go to Nineveh.

We're a lot like Jonah—complex and sometimes humorous in how we respond to God. Read Jonah 1-3 with your teenager. Each of you just might see yourself in Jonah's story.

As Karl Barth said, "Man can certainly flee from God, but he cannot escape him."

Pulse

Check out these interesting statistics about teenagers and discipline:

- In an online poll, 273 teenagers responded to the question "What types of discipline do your parents regularly or usually use on you?" The top answers were:
 - Loss of privileges such as cell phone (51%)
 - Being grounded (40%)
 - Physical punishment (22%)
 - None; they either don't believe in discipline or are too wimpy to be confrontational (20%)
 - Assigned extra household chores (19%)

- In the same poll, kids were asked how strict their parents are. Almost half (43%) of kids agreed with the statement "They let most things slide but are strict on the big stuff." But 12% of kids agreed with the statement "They're unpredictable; they go between strict and permissive, depending on their mood, how they feel, or maybe what phase the moon is that day."

Great Questions to Ask Your Kids

Your teenagers probably have strong opinions about this hot topic. Dig deeper by asking them:

1. What types of discipline and consequences are appropriate and inappropriate for teenagers, and why?
2. Should teenagers have a say in how or when they're punished? If so, explain.
3. When parents are handing out discipline, what should be their motivation and goals?
4. At what age should teenagers be responsible for controlling and monitoring their own behavior, and why?
5. How do people develop self-discipline? How strong has yours been lately?

Focus on Prayer

PRAY THAT:

1. God will guide your decisions about boundaries and consequences.
2. Your teenagers will recognize that your discipline is motivated by love and concern for them.
3. God will give your teenagers an obedient spirit, accompanied by respect for you and all authorities.
4. Your teenagers will develop self-discipline and internalize the guidelines you set for them.

Verse of the Month

"God's discipline is always good for us, so that we might share in his holiness. No discipline is enjoyable while it is happening—it's painful! But afterward there will be a peaceful harvest of right living for those who are trained in this way." (Hebrews 12:10-11)

God disciplines his children because he loves us and wants us to follow the right path. Although the training is difficult, filled with sinful missteps that require forgiveness, the end result is worth it. By submitting to the discipline of our heavenly Father, we show that we trust him to mold us into faithful Christians who live for him.

MUSICSPOTLIGHT

Mainstream Artist

Background: The DMB formed in 1991 and achieved national recognition with their 1994 album Under the Table and Dreaming. They support not-for-profit tapings of their live shows, saying it was the passing of these tapes by college students that led to their current fame.

Albums: Big Whiskey and the GrooGrux King (2009), Everyday (2001), Crash (1996)

What Parents Should Know: This band's lyrics can be provocative and dark, and sometimes they're political. Matthews has said his hit song "Crash Into Me" is about the worship of women from a voyeur's perspective.

What Dave Matthews Says: Matthews believes much criticism of President Obama is because of his skin color. "I just see [racism] everywhere. There's a good population of people in this country that are terrified of the president only because he's black, even if they don't say it."

Discussion Questions: Why is race such a big deal to some people? How prevalent is racism in America? When you interact with people, is race a factor? Read aloud Romans 10:12. If people are all equal, why did God create different races? What can we learn from people of other races and cultures?

Christian Artist

Background: Switchfoot, named after a surfing term, released their 1997 debut album, The Legend of Chin, to moderate success. They soon achieved mainstream accolades, with two songs on the A Walk to Remember soundtrack. Their 2003 album The Beautiful Letdown went double platinum.

Albums: Hello Hurricane (2009), Nothing Is Sound (2005), Learning to Breathe (2000)

What Parents Should Know: This solid, talented band has occasionally distanced itself from the "Christian" label. That's apparently an effort to reach fans who might otherwise ignore them as "just a Christian band."

What Switchfoot Says: Singer Jon Foreman says, "For us, it's a faith, not a genre. We've always been very open and honest about where the songs are coming from. For us, these songs are for everyone. Calling us 'Christian rock' tends to be a box that closes some people out and excludes them."

Discussion Questions: Is it wrong for Switchfoot to avoid the label "Christian band"? What are the pros and cons of being known as followers of Christ? Read aloud Acts 17:16-34. What strategies did Paul use to speak to the Greeks? Why did those strategies work—at least with some people?

FILMWATCH

Movie: The Twilight Saga: New Moon (releases Nov. 20)

Genre: Drama, Fantasy

Rating: PG-13 (for some violence and action)

Synopsis: In an effort to protect her, Bella's vampire love Edward Cullen has gone abroad. She finds her friendship growing with Jacob Black, but he's a werewolf, ancient enemy to the vampires. Bella's heart and loyalties are tested.

Discussion Questions: What people and things are you most loyal to, and why? What might cause you to switch your allegiance to a new group of friends or to a new belief? Read aloud 1 Kings 8:57-61. What things can steal our loyalty to God? How should we deal with them? In our day-to-day lives, what are some ways we can show our loyalty to God?
